Using Resources to Create a Sense of Belonging

The pandemic (and other stressors) continue to play havoc with our lives. Creating a sense of belonging (the focus of AY 21-22 Inclusive Classroom Training - https://go.iastate.edu/ZLWQUT) is essential to our students. A simple check-in with your students: a “rate your mood today” with a reminder of all of the wonderful ISU campus resources to support students (https://go.iastate.edu/A2F0Z0) can show them that you care and that they belong at ISU. For more ideas, check out CELT’s Teaching Talks series (https://go.iastate.edu/UUBQTF) on September 15 with Dr. TJ Stewart from the School of Education sharing ideas to develop care and community in the classroom.

With a joy for teaching,
Sara Marcketti
Director, CELT

Seeking Research Participants

Researchers in Psychology (Dr. Jason Chan and graduate student Dahwi Ahn) are seeking to connect with Fall 2019, Spring 2020, and Fall 2020 instructors. If you were an instructor during one (or more) of these semesters, these researchers would like to connect for a conversation about research participation investigating the diagnostic values of online exams versus in-person exams. You can find more information about the study, including contact information, on our website (https://go.iastate.edu/F9KH53).
